I love my voicemail service

I am a single man insurance company. I am on the road most of the day, visiting with clients or taking care of their insurance problems. I used to hire an answering service to take care of my calls while I was out of my office. I was never sure if all my callers were getting adequate attention. One of my clients got into an accident and called my office. My answering service was busy with personal chores and could not attend customer's call. Needless to say, I lost that customer. I looked around for a better solution and found out about XOP Networks Voicemail Central service. It is truly a great service. In my absence 100% of my customers are attended to. When someone calls my office and I am not there, the service tries to call me on my cell, if I do not pick up, the service allows a person to deposit a voicemail. As soon as that voicemail is deposited it sends the associated .wav file to my email address. I am able to open the email on my Blackberry and play the stored message right then and there.

Benefits

- ◆ Gives you advantages of a complete, feature rich voicemail system without having the hassle of managing the equipment. Great for small businesses who want the image of a sophisticated large business.
- ◆ You can get all of your messages i.e., from your home answering machine, from your office and from your cell phone forwarded to your email. Use your unlimited data plan to listen to your voicemails without wasting cellular minutes.
- ◆ All of your voicemails are posted on a secure web portal. You can select the voicemail you want to hear instead of listening to them in a sequential fashion. No more listen to all 15 voicemails first before you get to the 16th.
- ◆ Allows you to provision a call forward number. Voicemail system will first try to look for you at that number, and if the number is busy or does not answer then it will prompt the caller to leave a message.
- ◆ Convenient service backed by 24 x 7 customer support.

How Does It Work ?

VoiceMail Central - A Great Idea

I am a busy realtor. All day I run around showing different properties to my clients. Several of my clients and colleagues leave voicemail messages for me. Some leave a message on my home answering machine, some leave messages on my cell phone, others at my office. Typically I may have 10-15 messages waiting for me at any given time. Sometimes I know I may have an important message left for me, however I don't access it as I don't have the time to listen to all of my messages before I get to the message that I am really interested in. One of my clients suggested that I switch to XOP Network's Business Voice Mail Service. I did. The service is awesome. Now all of my voicemails from my office, my cell and my house are automatically forwarded as emails to my iPhone. I can see the caller id, and the duration of each message on a web portal. I click on the ones that are more important to me, and viola' I am able to hear them right on my iPhone. And the best part is that I don't burn any cell minutes while I listen to my voicemails. As the caller ID is displayed on my iPhone, I simply click on the number shown and call back to the ones I need to respond to quickly. This service saves me at least one hour per day.

Forward your one or more numbers to the XOP Networks voicemail system. When a caller calls any of your numbers, the call will be re-directed to the voice mail system. It will prompt the caller to leave a message.

The message will be automatically forwarded to your email address. You can then play the message received on your PC's or PDA's media player.

Personal Greeting – You can record your personal welcome greeting by dialing into the voicemail system and responding to an IVR.

Sub Mail boxes — You can set up a general mail box for your business and sub mail boxes for your employees. Each sub mail box can have its own greeting.

Easy to use – Most PBXs allow one to forward a call to an external number when the called number is busy or does not answer. Simply forward your phone number to the voicemail system, when you want your calls to be picked up by the voicemail system.

VoiceMail to Email Forwarding - All of your messages will be automatically forwarded to your email address as .wav files. You can listen to these emails on your PCs or PDA's media player.

Cost - The service is priced very cost effectively compared to current solutions. Please see your XOP Networks' Service Representative for details.

Billing - The service charge can be billed to your credit card each month.
